

Save the date! 13-15 May 2019

Sustainable adult education and learning in organisational settings

8th Nordic Conference on Adult Education and Learning to be held at DPU, Aarhus University, Copenhagen, Denmark

---

Adult education is to an ever-greater degree emphasised as the way forward – as a way to solve a variety of problems. Policymakers, educational institutions and, not least, private enterprises all point to adult education as the pathway to continued development of skills and competences, empowerment, social mobility and democratic involvement.

This poses a range of dilemmas for adult education that cannot be dismissed: current vs future competence requirements; formal vs non-formal education; local vs global challenges; tradition vs change; bottom up vs top down; and permanent positions vs a growing precariat. All these dilemmas influence the development of adult education research and practice.

How can we promote a sustainable development within sectors that struggle to balance the ebb and flow of political and financial support and demands? Sustainable development, as a broad critical perspective, emphasises that we as societies, organisations and individuals must be aware of the social, economic and ecological consequences of our actions.

This conference focuses on how we as adult education researchers and practitioners enter into a dialogue with the future that we want our work to inform and shape. How can we build on the strong traditions of adult education and contribute to sustainable solutions to the current and future dilemmas facing society, organisation and individuals.

Keynotes

Professor Bjarne Wahlgren

Bjarne Wahlgren is a professor in adult education and director for the National Centre for Competence Development at the Danish School of Education, Aarhus University. His research focuses on teacher training, competence development, evaluation and, in recent years, educational dropout. At the conference, he will present his work on 'Assessment and transformation of competence'

Associate Professor Jeppe Læssøe

Jeppe Læssøe is a professor with special responsibilities for research on environmental and sustainability education at the Danish School of Education, Aarhus University. His research focuses on social learning and socio-cultural change related to sustainable development issues. At the conference, he will present his work on 'The concept of sustainability; dilemmas and educational approaches'.

Professor Silvia Gherardi

Silvia Gherardi is a senior professor at the Research Unit on Communication, Organizational Learning and Aesthetics, University of Trento. Her research focuses on learning and knowing in practice-based studies and on post-qualitative research methodologies. At the conference, she will present her work on 'Learning and knowing in situated practices: a post humanist approach'.